Our design decisions:

For the design pattern we used to create our project, we chose to use a mediator. We used a stacked widget in the MainWindow ui to store all the pages for the different screens the user will use. In the .cpp file, the MainWindow would initialize to the home screen and every time the user would press the bolus or options button, it would switch to the respective page. This makes the MainWindow the mediator.